PORTLAND, OREGON: SATURDAY APRIL 4, 1874.

PRICE—TEN CENTS.

EASTERN NEWS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

Sunday Liquor Law—Centennial.

PHILADELPHIA, April 2.—The first saloon keeper was convicted to-day for violation of the Sunday liquor law. A woman testified to having obtained liquor from him ostensibly for her sick mother, but really in order to obtain grounds for an indictment against the vender, thus preventing him from selling drinks to her husband. The sentence was deferred.

The City Council to-day passed the $1,000,000 Centennial appropriation bill by acclamation.

Fires.

COHOES, N. Y., April 2.—The Tivoli Knitting Mills were burned this afternoon. Loss, $200,000. Insurance $180,000. Gregory & Hiller's Knitting Mill was also burned.

LOUISVILLE, April 2.—A fire in Lancaster yesterday burned eleven prominent buildings. Loss, $40,000.

Unsuccessful Strike.

CLEVELAND, April 2.—Three hundred laborers at the Union depot struck to-day for $1 75 per day instead of $1 60. They were promptly paid off.

WASHINGTON CITY.

Postal Contracts in a Muddle.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The contract for carrying the mails from Cloverdale to Arcata, heretofore awarded to S. W. Haslett, and contested by W. A. Pages, who bid the same amount, was to-day given to Bowe, on the ground that his present sub-contractor has the road stocked. Luttrell filed papers for each party, but took no action in favor of either. Both are residents of Ukiah.

The Taggart-Goddard contest is still held under consideration. Goddard turns out to be a resident of Vermont, but gave Yreka as his post office address. [illegible] he intended to remove there.

Oregon's Railway.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Nesmith made a strong argument this morning before the House Committee on Railways and Canals upon the bill introduced by him to aid in the construction of the Portland, Dalles and Salt Lake railroad. The Committee agreed to a favorable report. The bill provides that the Government shall guarantee interest on the bonds of the Company to the amount of $10,000 per [illegible] in Oregon, for which the Company is to [illegible] all United States mails, army supplies, etc., free of charge forever.

Marine.

The Russian bark Jupiter, from New York to Gibraltar, experienced very boisterous weather. On February 7th, when three days out, a squall struck the vessel, and at the same time a heavy sea passed over her and swept Captain Troudgeris and six of the crew from the deck. A returning wave bore [illegible] of the crew, but the others were never seen again.

The [illegible] steamer Annie Nore, 47 days out from New York for Rotterdam, has not been heard of [illegible] she sailed.

Financial.

Yesterday's action of the Senate settles the question that the National Bank circulation will not be [illegible] more than $46,000,000. Some financiers [illegible] of this will be availed of, because those [illegible] which demand an increase have not capital to buy Government bonds for security. Inflationists have abandoned their efforts to secure $200,000,000, or an illimitable increase, because they have [illegible] that the President would veto the measure, even if it were not beaten on the final vote, which is probable. The general impression is that the House will concur in the $46,000,000 action.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

[illegible], April 2.—The bark Santa Rosa, from Oregon, has arrived at Queenstown.

French Politics.

NEW YORK, April 2.—The London Telegraph of [illegible] says the opposition of the new Committee of the French National Assembly to report on [illegible] belonging to the end of the year the power of the present municipal councils, is tantamount to a Government defeat. Eight of the fifteen [illegible] belong to the Left, who regard the bill as an [illegible] on the right of electors.

NEWS FROM JAPAN.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 3.—The steamer Alaska arrived [illegible] from Hongkong and Yokohama, [illegible] dates from the latter place to March 10th. The [illegible] is not very important. The insurrection in the province of Saga had been quelled. [illegible] States and British Ministers are to reside henceforth. On the 8th there was a violent eruption of the [illegible] Taromani, which is about twenty miles from the Capital.

The China Mail contains a violent attack on U. S. [illegible] Brigham.

THE PEOPLE'S MOVEMENT.

CAN IT SECURE $1 25 PER BUSHEL FOR WHEAT FOR THE CROP OF 1874?

When wheat of the crop of 1873 was worth to the farmer $1 50 per bushel in San Francisco, it was worth but $1 to the farmer of Oregon.

Why is this so? Who stands in the door? Is it worth fifty cents per bushel, or $2 50 per barrel of flour, to get wheat or flour to San Francisco? Is not half that price enough, and good pay? Shall the farmers have the other half?

Mr Holladay, who runs the railroad, also runs the shipping from the Columbia to the Bay. He gathers the wheat at the upper end of the Willamette Valley, carries it north 200 miles, then west over 100 miles, then down the coast 600 miles, while from the south end of the railroad it is only 300 miles to San Francisco. Mr Holladay's attorney at Washington, in the U. S. Senate, has lately presented a bill to stop the Oregon and California Central railroad at a point not further south than Roseburg, probably at Junction City,—the city laid out and owned by the railroad ring. This movement of Mr. Holladay's, if successful, will insure him for a long time to come, the round about Robin Hood's barn route now enjoyed by that great Ben-a-factor of [illegible]. By stopping his railroad and preventing a junction with the California road at the State line, the southern farmers of Oregon will have to work for Mr. Holladay all their lives. His charges for carrying their wheat 900 or 1000 miles, and then bringing to their [illegible] goods from San Francisco in the same roundabout way, and being unrestricted by law or competition, sells out Douglas, Jackson and Josephine counties, and he might as well own them in name as well as in fact, and let them be called Holladay county; [illegible] Lane, Linn and Benton will be at his mercy during the low water of the Willamette [illegible] the fall months.

This is a bad outlook. There is no chance [illegible] it by competition.

Congress is talking of passing laws regulating freights and fares upon inter-State railroads, but Mr. Holladay does not propose to let his road run out of Oregon. But possibly competition can be preserved upon the ocean.

What is to hinder the farmers of Oregon from doing in Oregon what Congress proposes to do out of Oregon. Regulate transportation within the State by statute law?

The Legislature meets in time to pass freight and fare regulations for the moving of the crop of 1874. If the people have the members and the Governor to act, they can secure $1 25 per bushel. The difference to the farmers may be an added 25 cents upon last year. It may be, and if they are signally beaten in this contest, if they have no power to legislate, it will be, that instead of getting $1 25 per bushel, they will be pushed back by monopoly to their old price, "five bits."

How can the Bulletin, when it remembers that there is a God, higher than Ben Holladay, to whom it must one day answer for all its crimes against any and all of God's children, continue to assist that remorseless glutton in eating up the farmers of Oregon? Yours for justice and right.

G. W. LAWSON

CALIFORNIA.—California is a good place to come to. In San Francisco you can get the best free lunches for nothing in the world. None of your stewed kindling-wood on toast, with drawn butter over it, but real meat. All you need to go to housekeeping is a New York Mills muslin case, quilted inside, to sleep in. Buy a drink and they will give you for nothing boned turkey, boned partridge, boned codfish balls, and everything luxurious. You needn't be afraid of earthquakes, for it is generally understood now that the convulsions of nature that shook the people of San Francisco up some time ago, were caused by the fleas getting tired of lying on one side, and turning over.—Cor. N. Y. Sun.

PACIFIC COAST NEWS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

CALIFORNIA.

From San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 2.—A desperate stabbing affray occurred to-day at the Ocean Side House, in which Chas. Johnson cut Frank Green with a knife in the leg and shoulder, inflicting wounds which may prove mortal. Johnson was arrested. Both men were drunk at the time.

Many people have gone to Oakland to-day to see the race between St. James and May Howard. The performance of Lady Mac yesterday, trotting five miles in thirteen minutes, has caused great commotion in sporting circles here.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 3.—This evening a young hoodlum, on Seventh street, attacked a Chinaman who was passing by, and hurling a cobble-stone, struck a man in the face, inflicting a terrible wound, laying the cheek open to the teeth from the mouth almost to the ear. The Chinaman and several citizens gave chase, but the boy escaped. The man's wound is of a dangerous character.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 3.—It is reported that ~~Edward~~ Higgins, Agent of the Pacific Mail Company, of this city, has tendered his resignation.

Interior California.

RIVERSIDE, (San Bernardino Co.), April 3.—Our enterprising and growing town was to-day united with the telegraph world by the work of the Western Union Telegraph Company. The event causes the liveliest rejoicing. The country hereabouts is in a flourishing condition, and the prospect for crops is most promising. Stock interests are also highly flattering, with indications of abundant feed for a year.

OAKLAND, April 3.—A deaf and dumb man, named James Hay, jumped overboard from the 12 o'clock boat from San Francisco, as it was nearing the wharf, but was rescued, and tried a second time to jump into the water. He is a Scotchman, a ship-builder by trade, and about 23 years of age. He gives as a reason for the act that he was depressed in spirits, being out of work and money. He is now confined at the City Hall.

The race to-day at the Oakland Trotting Park, for $50, was won by May Howard. Time, 3:04; Dexter second.

STOCKTON, April 3.—Mr. Chapman, of the San Francisco Fire Department, to-day, by invitation, tested the second-class Amoskeag steam fire engine, recently purchased by the Weber Engine Co. No. 2, of Stockton. The first test was with 150 feet of hose, inch and a quarter nozzle, 125 pounds of steam working capacity. She threw a stream 277 feet. The boys were not satisfied, but gave her a second test, with 100 feet of hose, same nozzle, and 130 pounds of steam working capacity, throwing a stream 287 feet 7 inches. The water was rather muddy, and although this is the best work ever done in the State, members of the company claim she can do better.

NEVADA.

AUSTIN, April 3.—Mat. H. Funston, son of James Funston, Clerk of the City Council, committed suicide last night by shooting himself through the head with a pistol. Deceased has been a victim for a long time past of inflammatory rheumatism.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

VICTORIA, April 3.—The steamer California arrived in Esquimalt at 12:30 last night from the north. She reports things as very lively at Cassiar, and the miners making from $12 to $30 per day to the hand. There are between seven and eight hundred men at the mines. The weather is very mild. The river is expected to be open about the 1st of May.

Sylvester, of Barnard's Express, arrived in 3½ days from Buck's Bar on the ice, with about seven thousand dollars in dust.

The California sailed at 4 o'clock this morning for Portland.

The U. S. Quartermaster's schooner Margaret was lost off Prince Frederick Sound in a gale on the 23d of March. All hands saved.

To-day being Good Friday, business of all kinds is suspended here.

HOW THE INDEPENDENT MOVEMENT IS DEAD.

INDEPENDENCE, April 2, 1874.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The Bulletin remarks that the Independent movement is dying out, and but very little is heard of it. If you will permit me, I will enlighten that gentleman on the cause of this seeming quietude. This Independent movement was gotten up by the People, the greatest portion of whom are honest, hardworking farmers, and, like the politician, they are attending to their business. It is the business of the politician to harangue the people with their speeches, and make all the noise he possibly can to attract votes, and I see they are attending to it with even closer attention than heretofore, which is right enough, for that is their business, it is their bread and butter. But, Mr. Bulletin, just wait until we are through with our plowing, sowing and harrowing, and then we will talk. Just wait until June, and you will see whether the Independent movement has died out. We cannot afford to leave our work, to hire bands of music, fire cannons, etc., etc. We have to work too hard to make money enough to pay our taxes to keep you politicians. Of course, you politicians can afford to make noise, hire speakers, music, etc., for it costs you nothing. The people have to pay for it in the long run. All you have to do is to add one-half mill to the tax levy. But bear in mind, still waters have deep bottoms, and next June you will find that music don't elect anybody. Talk is cheap, but it takes votes to elect, and the Independent ticket will have these required votes.

Now, Mr. Editor, say, even, that for some unforeseen cause, the Independent ticket should get beaten, will it then be void of any good? Not at all. Just compare the ticket nominated heretofore and now. Heretofore, nobody was allowed to be nominated who was not a professional office-seeker; but this year, fearing they would thus stand no show, they were contented to squeeze a few of their kind in amongst some real good men, hoping that the few good men will carry them through, and a half a loaf is better than no bread. The people, therefore, will be that much gainer. They will have a few honest men elected; though as far as Polk county is concerned, I will insure the election of the entire Independent ticket by at least 125 majority.

PROPHET.

CAREER OF A DESPERATE VILLAIN.—The following appears under a Boston (Mass.) date of March 8th: James Wilson, who has been in close confinement at the State Prison for twenty years—for murdering a fellow-convict named William Adams—has had his sentence commuted to hard labor for the remainder of his life. During the first few years of his confinement, Wilson applied himself very diligently to reading select works of a philosophical character. Symptoms of a disordered intellect have occasionally appeared, which gradually increased until he became broken down, both in body and mind, suffering at periods indescribable torture from, as he terms it, the shade of Adams, the man he murdered. He is an Englishman, about fifty-seven years old, and a notoriously bad man. He was an educated thief and housebreaker, has been an inmate of most of the prisons in his own country, and was finally transported to Botany Bay. He escaped and came to this country, and was arrested and sentenced for breaking into the Treasurer's office in Charlestown. He killed Adams on the very morning his own sentence expired, the parties never having had any trouble, and there being no apparent cause for the act. He was for that crime condemned to be hanged. The gallows was erected, and the final services were being performed by the Chaplain, when a reprieve for thirty days was received from the Governor, at the end of which term the sentence was commuted to close confinement for life.

OREGON.

The Commercial flouring mills, at McMinnville, have closed for renovation.

The Yamhill county Central Grange met at Lafayette on Thursday, April 2d.

About half of the people of Albany are developing into temperance lecturers.

It is stated that Hon. D. P. Thompson has secured the mail contract from Roseburg to Redding.

From present indications Albany will, this season, take a long stride in the line of improvements and progress.

The Episcopals are fitting up a place of worship at McMinnville. They will build there the coming summer.

Several men, who attempted to pick up half-dollars and kicked old hats at Albany on the 1st inst., went off swearing.

The Forest Grove Independent says: "There is some talk that Frank Myers will soon take editorial charge of the Progressionist."

Eight out of seventeen applicants for teachers' certificates, in Yamhill county last week, failed to pass a satisfactory examination.

The Linn county jury in the case of Hardin Dawson, indicted for rape on the person of his half-sister, now Mrs. Delia Backus, returned a verdict of "guilty of incest," and Dawson will shortly be sentenced to the penitentiary.

Mr. A. Noltner has received the appointment of Deputy Grand Sire of the Grand Lodge of the United States, I. O. O. F., accompanied with the Charter for a Grand Lodge of British Columbia, which will shortly be instituted by him.

Gov. Grover has reappointed Samuel Hughes, of Forest Grove, Notary Public for Washington county. Wm. B. Hill has been reappointed a Commissioner of Deeds for Oregon, to reside in Baltimore, Maryland.

The public schools of Albany closed Friday, March 27th. The schools will open again on Monday, April 13th, under the management of T. J. Stites as Principal, J. M. Kitchen having charge of the Intermediate Department, and Mrs. Mansfield the Primary.

William Poe was convicted at Albany of incest, perpetrated on the person of his daughter, Mary E. Poe, and will be sentenced to-day. Capt. Humphrey prosecuted, and George R. Helm defended. Thus Linn sends up, from this term of court, two citizens for committing this most revolting crime.

Juanita Encampment, I. C. R. C., with 23 charter members, was organized at Lafayette March 30th. The following officers were installed: J. T. Hembree, E. C.; E. D. Starr, E. Counselor; G. P. Dorriss, C. H.; J. T. Hembree, S.; Docia Price, T.; H. D. Large, S. C.; S. M. Bradshaw, J. C. The time of meeting is Monday evenings.

A small force of brick masons—five or six in number—commenced operations on the State Capitol building on the 1st inst., and the working season may now be said to have opened. A full force of workmen will not be put on for a while, however, as preparations are not quite all completed, and there is no certainty that the weather is settled yet.

The Pendleton Tribune of April 1st says: Lewis Hughes, Esq., from the head of Willow creek, paid us a visit last Thursday. He reports that the cattle up in that region, though very poor, are now generally past all danger. The grass is gradually growing, and is sufficient to supply their present wants. The health of the people there is very good.

Right Rev. Bishop Morris, last Sunday morning, confirmed a class of ten persons at the Episcopal Church in Oregon City, and one sick person at his residence, making in all eleven. He held also three services that day, which might be termed a good day's work. The missionary services in that city, which commenced last Thursday, were well attended.

A card from the Oregon City Board of Health, composed of Hons. John Myers, W. C. Johnson and Dr. J. W. Norris, says that there are no new cases of smallpox in that city, and that since the death of Charles E. Warren, Esq., the premises in which he died have been thoroughly cleansed and fumigated, and all danger of contagion is entirely removed, so far as their judgment can determine.

An Encampment of the Champions of R. C. was organized at McMinnville on the 1st inst. The following persons were elected and installed officers for the term: T. B. Handley, E. C.; L. S. Bailey, E. Con.; G. W. Snyder, S. C.; C. J. Handley, Sec'y; E. C. Dallas, Treas.; G. W. Jones, C. H.; K. B. H. Spencer, J. C.; S. Handley, Chap.; R. Nash, M. C.; F. H. Saylor, C. R. C.; T. W. Spencer, R. S.; L. Story, I.; J. A. Young, V.; A. M. Handley, 1st L.; G. B. Duncan, 1st G.; H. Higley, O. S.

The Yamhill Reporter says: "Farmers from different parts of the county have spoken to us very encouragingly of the growing grain, and express the prospect of a better crop than last year, if no drawback transpires between this and harvest. The late cold weather somewhat checked the growth of grain, and it is not so large as it was at this time of the season last year; and the farmers say it is all the better for that, as much of the grain last year got such a start and grew so fast that much of it was wasted in smut instead of filling up in heads and ripening.

A letter from Independence, dated April 2d, says: "Quite a serious accident happened in our neighborhood last Sunday; and as I have not seen it in print, I send it to you. Mr. Elkins, Mr. Morrison and three young ladies started in a hack to attend church. On the way the linchpin broke, causing the forewheel to run on the horses' heels, when they became unmanageable and ran away. One of the ladies, Miss Morrison, had three ribs broken. Miss Elkins' right limb is badly hurt—supposed to be broken—and the other lady, Miss Davidson, got away with her dress badly torn. One of the horses (a very fine one) got one of his legs broken, and had to be shot. It will take at least $50 to repair the hack. The report about the fire in Monmouth was a false alarm."

The Mercury tells this: "A colored citizen was wending his way down Commercial street with a large sack of dry shavings upon his shoulder. As he was passing by a certain young man, that individual quietly struck a match and applied it to the combustibles. Only a few seconds were necessary to remind the colored gentleman that something was wrong, and as the flames from the sack of burning shavings rose over his head, he gave one wild shriek and bounded down the street like a frightened mustang, leaving the wreck of burning shavings strewn upon the sidewalk. Not until after the fellow had upset a fish-cart, stampeded a dray horse, ran over two or three small boys and an old woman did he fully realize his situation. His looks upon returning can better be imagined than described."

The Fleming monument, is now nearing completion at Salem. It is an excellent piece of workmanship, and is constructed entirely of California marble, and stands five and one-half feet high. On the front side is a hand holding a printer's stick, representing a compositor at work. Beneath it is inscribed: "John Fleming, the Pioneer Printer of Oregon. Erected by the Craft." On one side is inscribed, "Died in Oregon City, December 2d, 1872." On the back is the Masonic square and compass with the letter "G" in the center. On another side is "Born on Big Island, Lycoming county, Pennsylvania, March 9th, 1795." The cost of the monument is $83, but its real value, we were informed, is $1[illegible]. We think the craft of this State will ever feel proud of this token to the memory of "Uncle John" Fleming. It is to be brought to Oregon City in a short time and placed over the grave.

The London Times has completed a careful review of the census of 1871 of the British Empire. There are 38 persons to a square mile in the Empire, 260 in the United Kingdom; 201 in India, and 1.41 in the colonies. It should be observed, however, that in some parts of India the density of population more than equals that of England. The Queen rules over 234,762,593 souls; her people dwell in 44,142,651 houses; the area of the lands they inhabit is not less than 7,769,449 square miles.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY.

Linn county has one sixth of the Grangers in the State.

The Grangers are too busy plowing to make much fuss about politics, but will be heard from in June.

Indiana has a "Wild Cat Grange," regularly organized under the constitutional clause affecting new Granges.

There are three brothers named Carr in one county of California, each of whom is the W. M. of a Grange of P. of H. A fourth brother is the Worthy Overseer in another Grange, and the fifth is Master of a Grange in Clinton county, Missouri.

Deputy Smith organized a Grange of P. of H. at Elma, on Tuesday. The name chosen is "Chehalis," with twenty-nine charter members. M. Z. Goodell is Master, and W. A. Anderson, Secretary. Another was instituted at Oakville, Chehalis county, with eighteen charter members. Geo. E. Smith is Master, and Miss Newton Secretary.

The New York State Grange met at Albany on the 20th and adopted resolutions accepting the declaration of the National Grange at St. Louis, demanding legislation to open and improve avenues of traffic, cheaper transportation, a pro rata freight law, low canal tolls, and the canal-debt-funding amendment, and favoring reasonable temperance reform legislation.

Mountain View Grange, Lower Molalla precinct, Clackamas county, was organized on the 31st ult., and elected the following officers for the present term: Isaac Clowser, M.; Robert Irvin, O.; A. Carmichael, Sec.; Wm. Riggs, L.; Wm. Parker, S.; Wm. Irvin, A. S.; Polk Gribble, C.; John Wiserman, G.; Mrs. Ann Gribble, T.; Mrs. Caroline Offield, L. A. S.; Miss Sarah Gribble, C.; Miss Amenda, [illegible]; Miss Lizzie Offield, F. The Grange started with 30 members.

Highland Grove Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, Clackamas county, was organized on the 23d ult., by E. Forbes, D. G. M., with 25 charter members. The following is the list of officers elected for the ensuing year: R. Stricklin, M.; A. M. Shibley, O.; J. W. Blackwell, L.; C. T. Hickman, Sec.; J. Frazer, S.; J. R. Tucker, A. S.; G. W. Parish, C.; Mrs. Alla Stricklin, T.; L. Mutoon, G.; Mrs. E. Harrington, L. A. S.; Mrs. M. E. Harrington, C.; Miss M. Taylor, P.; Miss E. Harrington, F.

THE CHAPLAIN OF THE SENATE.

Dr. New*man's* successor in the chaplaincy is a slight person of no consequence—Sunderland by name—a spruce little creature, and very active in his small, smart way. He is just learned enough to know which side his bread is buttered on, but the midnight oil was wasted on him if it was intended to make him an illustrious theologian. Byron—that is his beautiful Christian appellation—is dotingly fond of the sound of his own voice, which is rather strange, seeing that it is far from a pleasant voice, and is both thin and drawling. In one respect he is indeed a remarkable person. His organs of speech are located in the nose, and his eloquence is seriously marred in consequence of its having to reach an audience by means of this circuitous passage. This singular freak of nature was possibly designed by Providence to prevent small schisms in the church, for there is no telling what kind of doctrine such an absurd little fellow would attempt to propa*gate, if he could only talk with his mouth.* But in mere prayer—that is to say, mere contract prayer like Byron's—it is rather an advantage than otherwise. It lends to his petition a dismal, sanctimonious tone, which seems highly appropriate when the blessing of heaven is asked upon the daily proceedings of the most distinguished scamps in the whole party of "great moral ideas." And Byron is in earnest. He really wants the blessings to fall right there. Where a man's treasure is there will his heart be. Sometimes, however, Byron can hardly wait to finish his nasal supplications, knowing as he does that some particularly rich pie is to be cut as soon as grace is said. It must indeed be painful and aggravating to keep one's nose elevated at that precise angle with the scent of tempting plunder assailing it from below. On one occasion, when the case of J. O. Armes was pending, Byron's fastidious virtue is said to have given way altogether; and doing up the religious ceremony in a sort of "them's my sentiments" style, he descended with undignified haste, ran nimbly around the lobby, and incontinently snaked the fat bill through. But let no man suppose that Byron gave his own receipt for the fee. Oh, no! He had lobbied for the Lord, and the Treasurer of Byron's church received the humble wages of his toil. Stuggins, it will be remembered, expected nothing for himself under the will of the lamented Mrs Weller. He interrogated Samuel sorely to ascertain if she had left "nothing—nothing for the little church." We would not for the world offer a single disrespectful remark of such a merry little gospeler as Byron, but, being on the subject, we are constrained to say that Byron would be a sad dog if he were not so very amusing.—N. Y. Sun, March 18th.

HORRORS OF SOLITARY IMPRISONMENT IN TENNESSEE.

The Chattanooga Times reveals an almost incredible case of outrage upon individual rights. A lawyer named Overton, who was examining titles in Huntsville, Scott county, happened into an apple brandy mill one day, and heard a party of excited individuals discussing the cruel and outrageous imprisonment of one of their number in the Huntsville jail. The lawyer inquired the particulars, when the spokesman of the party directed his attention across the street, saying, "Thar he is, over thar on that fence." Overton looked across the street, and saw a seedy-looking individual sitting on the fence whittling a pine shingle. The lawyer approached and asked him if he was in trouble. "Ya'as; put me in here, charge of 'licit stillin'." "And they keep you here pretty close?" "Time 'bout half out. Got transferred from Knoxville jail." "Who is your jailer?" "Jailer? Ha'unt any. Carry the keys myself." Here the rest of the party approached, and after declaring that it was an outrage, and expressing their sympathy for the prisoner, adjourned across to take a drink, the prisoner accompanying them. Shortly after this a gentleman who had heard of this lone prisoner visited the jail, but found the door wide open, and only one man inside, busily engaged at some rough carpenter work. The gentleman asked him if he was the unfortunate man who was suffering from the horrors of solitary imprisonment, and received an answer in the affirmative. "Ya'as," he replied, "got me in here." "What a shame!" said the gentleman, indignantly. "Come over and have a drink." And over they went, the convict locking the door behind him. A day or two after this he was seen in the woods with a gun and game-bag. "Ya'as," he said again, in answer to the same question, "they've got me in here, charge of 'licit stillin'," and still a few days after he was seen three miles from Huntsville, on his way home to spend a few days with his family. "Still got me here," he said, "but my time's over half up now," and the suffering man went on his way sorrowfully.

The Lewiston Signal of the 28th ult. learns that Larry Ott, who lives at Horse Shoe Bend, Salmon river, shot an Indian through the breast under the following circumstances: It seems that a piece of land occupied by Larry Ott has been in dispute between him and the Indian; and on the day of the shooting the Indian tore down Larry's fence, and while Larry was plowing, jumped in front of his horses and scared them with a blanket, causing them to run away, also threw a stone at Larry, hitting him in the head. This provoked Larry to such an extent that he pulled out his six-shooter and fired at the Indian, the ball taking effect in the side of one breast and ranging through both. The Indian lived six days, at the end of which time he died. Larry gave himself up to the authorities, and was bound over to appear for trial.

THE TERRITORIES.

F. Henry is lecturing the Olympians on the Philosophy of Humbug.

John E. Gale is requested to communicate with the office of the Echo at Olympia.

Olympians are not pleased to have their mail from Portland go via Tacoma. It is too long reaching its destination.

Very discouraging reports come in from various portions of Utah Territory of cattle dying by the score through cold and starvation.

John Hailey, Delegate in Congress from Idaho, had 10,000 sheep when the winter set in, and has lost many, but not 3,000 head, as has been reported.

Howard L. Davenport, of Salt Lake, accidently shot himself while on a visit to his parents in Wisconsin, on the 5th ult., and died in about half an hour.

Dabney Jones has been sentenced to twelve years' imprisonment, at Olympia, for killing a Mr. Taylor. If reports are near true, Jones is fortunate in not stretching hemp.

The farmers of southern Utah who were so fortunate as to get their wheat in the ground before the heavy snow storm, say the snow will prove very beneficial, and they are assured an excellent crop.

Mr. N. P. Langford, Superintendent of the National Park, in a communication to Secretary Delano, states that $100,000 will be required to render the park accessible, preserve it from spoliation, and complete the survey of its boundaries. An appropriation of at least $20,000 is asked to commence the work in hand the present year.

The Idaho Statesman, of March 28th, says: "Last Thursday Prof. Heard, of this city, took out of Boise river what was once a part of an oak tree, but which, in the lapse of time, has been converted into stone. The log was about eight feet long and ten inches through, and is the most perfect specimen of petrified wood we have ever seen.

A railroad meeting at Olympia resolved that next Tuesday (April 7th) be devoted to the inauguration of work on the Olympia-Tenino Railroad, that all ordinary business and avocations be suspended on that day, and that the whole community proceed en masse to Warren's Point, the men to work, and the ladies with lunch baskets to provide refreshments, and encourage the work by their presence.

The Idaho Signal of the 28th ult., says: A new mail route has been established between Indian Valley and Washington, and W. J. Kelley, now in the employ of Baird Bros. carrying the express and mail to Warrens, has obtained the contract for carrying the mail. Indian Valley is a tributary of the Weiser, and the route from Washington (Warrens) is via Warm Springs up Secesh Creek; thence down the Payette six miles beyond the Lewis*ton trail*; thence in a westerly direction to Indian Valley. The distance from Warrens to Indian Valley is about one hundred and twenty miles, nearly the whole of which, in the winter season, will have to be traveled on snow-shoes.

Last week one of the workmen engaged on the water ditch at Lewiston discovered, about eighteen feet below the surface, a tooth of an animal, which weighed six and one-half pounds. When found, it was thought by one of the workmen to be a quartz specimen, and it was broken in several pieces with a pick. A closer examination disclosed the fact that it was part of one of the extinct species of the animal race, and notwithstanding the breaking of it, it has been temporarily put together and will probably be sent to Prof. Condon. It is believed by some of the men employed on the ditch that, by excavating a little around where this fossil was found, the remainder of the skeleton could be brought to light.

The San Francisco Rural Press of March 28th has the following: "Mr. S. M. Waite, of Dayton, Washington Territory, whose name has been mentioned in connection with the establishment of a beet sugarie at Dayton, left, for his home on the 21st inst. In conversation with him, a few days since, he assured us that he had carefully examined into the matter of his mission—has visited and closely inspected the beet sugaries at Sacramento and Alvarado, and the cane sugar refineries of this city, and has come to the conclusion that the plan of establishing a beet sugarie at Dayton is a perfectly feasible one. Mr. Waite is a gentleman of large business experience, is well known in Wash*ington Territory*, in Oregon, and in many parts of this State, and we have no doubt his favorable report in this matter will insure the early erection of the proposed works. The town of Dayton is located in Walla Walla county, near the extreme southeastern portion of the Territory. The large cost of freight to this extreme location—over three cents per pound—will add largely to the profits of the manufacture over those which can be realized in this city. The market there is quite extensive and rapidly increasing. Mr. Waite will take up a quantity of beet seed with which experiments in raising beets will be tried in various localities the present season. If these experiments succeed—of which there can scarcely be a doubt—the factory will be put up in season to commence operations with the incoming of next year's crop."

FOREIGN NOTES.

As one result of the recent explorations of Mr. Gosse and his party in Western Australia, we learn that they have discovered a huge monolith, 1,100 feet high, and six or seven miles in girth at its base, and the interest in the discovery is heightened by the fact that a stream of water fed by a spring in the center of the conglomerate, flows from the rock. Those who take an interest in geological studies will await with impatience some further particulars regarding this immense pyramid, which is destined to become famous as one of the most singular and prominent of Australian landmarks.

The Kolnische Zeitung informs its readers that there is at the present time exhibited for sale in the shop of the jeweler Badt, at Berlin, a magnificent ring labelled "pawned by Archbishop Ledochowski." This announcement is, of course, attracting considerable attention, and whether true or false, the ring itself appears worthy of the character claimed for it as a genuine annulus episcopalis, sent by the Pope to the Primate. It bears a splendid amethyst, the typical stone of hierarchical consecration, on which a Christ on the cross is exquisitely carved, while the hoop and settings are of gold, curiously and richly enameled. It is offered for sale for 1,000 marks.

COLUMBIA COUNTY REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

Pursuant to call, the delegates from the several precincts met in Convention at St. Helens on Saturday, March 28th, 1874. On motion, C. G. Caples was called to the Chair, and M. Pomeroy elected Secretary.

It was moved that the Convention proceed to ballot for delegate to the State Republican Convention. Carried, and W. W. West was, upon ballot, duly elected a delegate.

Moved that the delegate to the State Convention be instructed to use his influence with the delegates from Tillamook and Clatsop counties to secure the nomination of T. A. McBride as Joint Senator from said counties. Carried.

The following gentlemen were then elected a County Committee for the ensuing year: T. A. McBride, Chairman; W. West, Henry Girty, J. H. Bridges, S. Wood, E. W. Conyers and E. Henrici.

Moved, that this Convention do now ad*journ*, subject to the call of the Chairman of the County Committee. Carried.

M. POMEROY, Secretary.

THE SALEM STATESMAN.

The Statesman administers this heroic dose to the ring organ of this city.

The Bulletin informs its readers that "it was generally understood that Capt. C. P. Crandall took charge of the Salem Statesman yesterday."

Similar rumors have been circulated in this city for some days past, and our reply is simply this: that we expect to make Salem a daily newspaper for twenty five years to come, more or less, that we are not using a type of the old Statesman material in the reading we offer our subscribers, and that we have permanent lease of the premises we occupy. All things considered, it might be reasonable for the Bulletin to attend to its own business, which we understand demands all the mental and financial resources of the persons interested therein. We distinctly assure our patrons that they will find us making a daily paper here ever so long after the Bulletin and the whole Custom House ring are politically dead—we don't say forgotten, because they have an unwholesome notoriety which the world should not soon forget.

SATURDAY MORNING APRIL 4 1874

THE ANNUAL SCHOOL MEETING

The annual election of School Directors and Clerks will be held on next Monday In this District which comprises the entire city and some of its outlying suburbs there is one Director to succeed Dr Giltner and a Clerk to be elected The District is one of those in which it is provided by statute that the polls shall be kept open all the afternoon and the voting be done by ballot just the same as in the general election

We cannot too strongly urge upon our citizens to take an interest in the matter and see to it that we have suitable officers chosen Portland boasts a little [illegible] we think with ample cause of her system of free schools Probably there is not a school in the State that is doing better work, according to its grade than the public schools of Portland They are graded with as much precision as it is possible to grade any school in Oregon, and the high school, which is a part of the free school plan, is in all respects one of the best schools of the State public or private Proud of these schools, citizens of Portland should take the greater pains to keep up their high standard of excellence

We have heard the name of but one person mentioned in connection with the office of Director, namely, that of Mr A H Morgan Mr Morgan is a very capable gentleman and will doubtless make an active and efficient Director, if chosen We do not speak of him as the only suitable person for the position, but simply as the only one we have heard named and one in all respects qualified for the duties of the position Morgan or any other equally good man," is our choice for Director

For Clerk we have heard of Messrs J D Holman, O S Phelps and Ed Cornell either of whom would make a good officer Mr Phelps is an aged gentleman and having been burned out of his place of business and left in straightened circumstances by the great fire of August the fees of the office—though not large—would be a very timely assistance to him in supporting his family On this account we should be glad to see him elected but as we said before, either of the other candidates would, we are satisfied, make a good officer, and be very acceptable to the District

RIGHT BUT SURE TO FAIL

The delegates to the Yamhill County Republican Convention from East Chehalem precinct are instructed by vote of their precinct meeting, to support no man for a delegate to the Republican State Convention, who will not pledge himself to use his best efforts to rescind the infamous Hipple resolution which defeated the party last fall The State Convention will not rescind that resolution, because a majority of its delegates will be put up by the ring with especial reference to that question and for the especial purpose of preventing the rescission, just as the Convention last fall was "put up" for the especial purpose of passing the resolution endorsing Hipple when it was known that such action would destroy the prospects of the party The course urged by these Yamhill Republicans is the only one that could possibly save the party in this State, if indeed it is not too late to effect its preservation even by that means, but those who indulge in the delusive hope that the men who have fastened themselves upon the party and control its action through the patronage of the bigamous Senator, will yield to the demand for the rescission of the odious resolution for the sake of saving the party will see when the Convention meets how greatly they are deceived. The professions of attachment to the Republican party on the part of the ring are utterly empty, as their attempts to combine with the Democracy to beat the People's candidate abundantly proves The Republican party is nothing to them, and principle is nothing to them Office, power, salaries, stealings, these are all in all

THE ARKANSAS IMPEACHMENT CASE

The petition signed by numerous prominent citizens of the Western Arkansas District praying the impeachment of William Story, U S District Judge of that district, contains nineteen specifications of official corruption, which the petitioners say can be well supported by proof They charge direct and indirect bribery, and in each case the time and place of the alleged crime and the parties concerned besides the Judge, are definitely stated If one half that is charged against him is true he is a more atrocious judge than Barnard of New York, or Durell of Louisiana But the motive that prompted his corruptions differing from those instances seems to have been in some cases personal enmity towards a member of his bar whom he wished to degrade, and in others the fear of being indicted himself in his own court unless he could procure the conviction of certain other persons who were unfriendly to him He appears to have had a quarrel with different persons connected with his court—counsel parties and witnesses—and to have attempted to use his position corruptly to help him in these personal difficulties There are a few charges that do not come within either of these classes, such as corruptly signing the Marshal's vouchers in blank offering to resign his office for a money consideration etc

Story is a young man and has the reputation of possessing considerable ability He was appointed District Judge two or three years since at the instance of Senators Rice and McDonald Until within the last year he stood high in the estimation of the public

HARRY MEIGGS BILL VETOED

The California Legislature passed an act for the relief of Harry Meiggs the celebrated California defaulter and Peru railway builder But Gov Booth was unable to see why Mr Meiggs should be exempt from the punishment which others receive who commit high crimes and accordingly he declined to approve the bill In his veto message he says

If all men are equal before the law a bill which selects one and places him above the law, cannot be justified If the Legislature can order a court having jurisdiction in the premises to dismiss an indictment in any case it can in every case and the administration of justice would be transferred from the judicial to the political forum If the Legislature can prohibit the grand juries of the State from presenting any bill of indictment against one man the oath to be administered should be changed to conform to the provisions of this bill The bill is in the nature of a legislative pardon before conviction and indictment [illegible] offenses As an assertion of State policy it is without parallel in so far as it establishes a precedent in violation of [illegible] and principle

The objection of Gov Booth in its legitimate bearing presents a very interesting question which may admit of argument on both sides but there can be no doubt of the correctness of his view of the impolicy of enacting any such laws as that which he had under consideration It was so manifestly and palpably a violation of natural justice and therefore of social principle that it seems unaccountable that the Legislature should have passed it The process of reasoning by which is demonstrated the justice of permitting the rich to violate the laws and commit crimes with impunity while poor but not more criminal violators of law are made to atone for their crimes by suffering the penalties of the law is by no means apparent

The discussion on the point at issue between Plymouth Church and the Storrs and Buddington partisans seems to be altogether one sided Briefly stated the cause of the recent Congregational Council was this Tilton was accused of uttering a slander on Beecher was summoned in 1873 to appear before the congregation of Plymouth Church and make answer to the charge He appeared and declined to be put on his defense because he had severed his connection with that church in 1860 Thereupon his name was dropped from the roll of church members Although Tilton paid little attention to the proceeding Drs Storrs and Buddington protested against the action of Plymouth Church as un Congregational Beecher replied in substance, that his church was a law unto itself and subject only to the divine law Hence the Congregational Council and its extraordinary verdict In a letter to that body, Tilton says Plymouth Church has repeatedly affirmed the right of any one of its members to withdraw by his own free will, that he did so withdraw in 1860 and that four years afterward he was charged by a member of that body with having circulated and promoted a scandal derogatory to the Christian integrity of the pastor etc On this point he says

I hereby declare that I had not then nor have I since nor at any time in my life have I ever uttered a slander against a human being

Notwithstanding this letter and the peremptory refusal of Plymouth Congregation to abide by the verdict the Council which was made up of delegates from all the Eastern and Middle States pronounced judgment on the case It was one of the queerest ecclesiastical conventions ever held

Our latest Eastern exchanges are unanimous in the opinion that Dawes cannot by any possible chance succeed to Sumner's seat Butler's advocacy of him is too open and vigorous The Tribune says the unfortunate signal note was given at the Simmons jubilee in the Parker House when an enthusiastic Democrat proposed the toast Butler for Governor and Dawes for Senator in 1875 The number of Butler Republicans in both branches of the Legislature is 40 and the number of Democrats 76 Many of Dawes' best friends say he can do nothing to injure his own fair fame more than to allow the further use of his name in the contest Poor Dawes Supported by Butler, his punishment is greater than he can bear

The Freeman bill to regulate freights and fares on the railways of California has at last been defeated In the California Senate March 25th the final vote on the passage of the bill was taken—ayes 10 noes 30 The Irwin bill, a substitute for Freeman's measure was also defeated by a tie vote—20 to 20 The independent journals are much disappointed and they improve the occasion by denouncing the corrupting influences brought to bear by the Central Pacific Company The Legislature adjourned Monday, March 30th

The Michigan Legislature, having adopted an amendment to the constitution giving the elective franchise to the women of that State the Sacramento Union says

It is our conviction that if the average woman could not elect better and more intelligent men than many of those who find their way to State Legislatures and to Congress she must be a poorer institution than we think she is

It is said that the approaching canvass on the amendment will be exceedingly lively and that the measure will certainly be ratified by the people

The officers of Trinity Church New York deny that the property of their corporation amounts to $60 000 000 as the current report goes They estimate the total value of the same at $7 000 000 or $8 000 000 The income for 1873 was only [illegible] $500 000 one tenth of which was donated to poor churches The trustees (or vestry) of the parish have decided to rent no building for the sale of liquor hereafter

NEW PUBLICATIONS

The April number of Scribner's Monthly contains another installment of Edward King's Great South the subject this time being A Ramble in Virginia from Bristol to the Sea The illustrations as usual are profuse Among the notable features of the number are the beginning of Jules Verne's serial The Mysterious Island an essay by Augustus Blauvelt author of the [illegible] Modern Skepticism entitled Christ's [illegible] Scientifically Considered [illegible] a timely paper by Mrs [illegible] [illegible] Hints of English and American Women [illegible] Brooks [illegible] The new story by [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Mrs Davis [illegible] and Miss Trafton's [illegible] The number opens with an illustrated poem by [illegible] Taylor and there are verses by A R Macdonough John [illegible] J G H [illegible] and Edward King Dr Holland in Topics of the Time writes about Jules Verne's New Story [illegible] and Social Usages The Old Cabinet is concerned with Veracity Amateur Theatricals are practically discussed in Home and Society and the other departments have their characteristic variety

The [illegible] presents an unusually interesting table of contents this month Richard Grant White's Linguistic and Literary Notes and Queries [illegible] papers upon philological science is a discussion of several questions that have given rise to controversy as for instance the [illegible] Latin pronunciation The editor's scientific miscellany will be also found of great interest [illegible] persons who possess the habit of exact thinking And for those who prefer light reading there is narrative and fiction of the best quality

St Nicholas, the chief of all the juvenile periodicals opens with an article from the pen of Donald G Mitchell on the invention of printing which will not find its delighted readers amongst young people only There are other articles in this number which will be highly enjoyed by children of the larger growth The poems are by Celia Thaxter, Margaret [illegible] and Mary A Lothbury the last of whom illustrates her curious piece in a very attractive manner

AT [illegible] — By dispatch it is learned that [illegible] Smith who went East some months ago for the purpose of purchasing blooded stock for [illegible] large farm near Walla Walla arrived at Kelton on Wednesday He [illegible] 400 head of fine blooded sheep which had been brought to that point by rail From Kelton to Walla Walla these sheep were to be driven on foot It will probably be some time before Mr Smith reaches his ranch as it is quite early in the spring and the snow and rain are likely to interfere with driving the sheep and cause unavoidable delays

IMPRISONED — In Police Court yesterday morning the cases of Henry Williams and [illegible] Lyman both of whom were accused of purloining a gold ring from a pawnbroker's shop last Monday evening were called up for trial Testimony tending to establish the guilt of these parties beyond a doubt having been brought [illegible] Court sentenced each defendant to pay a fine of $25 These young men not having the wherewithal at command to liquidate they were remanded to jail to serve out their respective terms

PAID OVER — Sheriff Caywood yesterday paid over to the County Treasurer of Multnomah county the sum of $59 000 in gold coin and about $9 000 in county orders making a total of $68 000 Mr Masters is now busily engaged in figuring up the interest upon the amount of indebtedness which the Sheriff's payment will cover and on Monday or Tuesday of next week he will call in the [illegible] the county's indebtedness

CONTRACT AWARDED.—Contracts were awarded yesterday at the office of Burton & Williams architects for the construction of the large brick building to be built the present season by S G Reed. As previously announced the structure will occupy a portion of the block bounded by A and B and Front and First streets. Some weeks ago the contract for the iron work for the first story was awarded to Honeyman & Co. Mr T M Richardson the well-known contractor has been awarded the masonry work and also the iron work for the second and third stories of which there will be considerable. Messrs McPhee & Bone bright were awarded the woodwork of the structure. Properly speaking, although announced as but one contract there will be two separate buildings constructed—adjoining each other. One main structure will be commenced at a point on First street fifty feet south of B street and will extend through the entire block to Front street. Its width is to be 50 feet, and length 200 feet. Five feet will be left off of the southern line of the building its whole length. Facing on Front street, and adjoining the south side of the last mentioned building another brick structure will be erected. This building will include the five feet left off from the main edifice and will be thirty feet in width and extend west into the block ninety feet. Both structures are to be built of brick and will be three stories high. When finished the building is to be occupied by the firm of Goldsmith & Co and the smaller one by Wasserman & Co. Already the old wooden tenements which occupy the site of these contemplated structures are being removed to less conspicuous localities, and are shortly to be supplemented by far more pretentious, handsomer and enduring edifices. Excavation will be commenced as soon as the wooden houses can be removed and the grounds cleared of rubbish. This in turn will be followed by the masonry and iron work. In a few weeks the ground will be thickly strewn with building material and the ringing of the trowel will be heard in that vicinity. August the 1st is the time specified in the contract for the completion of this important improvement.

ENTERPRISING LOCAL EDITORS.—Once in a while your average enterprising local editor is altogether too much so. The following from an exchange will serve to illustrate the case: "There was a ball on Shrove Tuesday night at the St Louis Theater Comique and thither, to gaze incog upon the mysteries of Mabile, repaired in mask many prominent and circumspect citizens. Judge of their alarm next day when they found that a Dispatch reporter had them all mentioned by name as among the guests. It is, of course, says the erring editor in a double-leaded apology on the day after 'not possible to repair the injury inflicted, but still none the less incumbent upon us to say that, had we been present the article would not have appeared.' But it is to be doubted whether even this explanation will make it all right at home for the delinquent husbands."

AT KELTON.—By dispatch it is learned that J Pat Smith, who went East some months ago, for the purpose of purchasing blooded stock for his large farm near Walla Walla arrived at Kelton on Wednesday. He has with him 400 head of fine blooded sheep, which had been brought to that point by rail. From Kelton to Walla Walla these sheep were to be driven on foot. It will probably be some time before Mr Smith reaches his ranch as it is quite early in the spring, and the snow and mud are likely to interfere with driving the sheep, and cause unavoidable delays.

LARCENY.—In Police Court yesterday [illegible] the cases of Henry Williams and S L Lyman, both of whom were accused of purloining a gold ring from a pawnbroker's shop last Monday evening were called up for trial. Testimony tending to establish the guilt of these parties beyond a doubt having been brought, the Court sentenced each defendant to pay a fine of $25. These young men not having the where-with all at command to liquidate, they were remanded to jail to serve out their respective terms.

PAID OVER.—Sheriff Caywood yesterday paid over to the County Treasurer of Multnomah county the sum of $59 000 in gold coin, and about $9 000 in county orders making a total of $68,000. Mr Masters is now busily engaged in figuring up the interest upon the amount of indebtedness which the Sheriff's late payment will cover, and on Monday or Tuesday of next week, he will call in the [illegible] of the county's indebtedness.

INTEREST UNABATED.

Notwithstanding the temperance prayer meetings have been held almost every night for the last month, yet we find no abatement of interest in the public mind. Last evening, the vestry of the Taylor street Church was crowded to its fullest capacity with an eager throng. Every available seat was occupied, and the aisles about the doorway were filled by persons compelled to stand. The usual order of exercises was not observed on this occasion. Instead of the prayers and addresses the usual time allotted to such meetings was consumed in reading extracts from a number of Eastern exchanges, of the movement. Copious extracts were read from nearly a dozen papers, many of which are journals of widely recognized influence, respectability and circulation, giving accounts of the contests of the women with the whisky traffic throughout the towns, villages and populous cities of the East and West. Many circumstances and incidents of the war on rum were read. These accounts were listened to with an almost breathless interest, and the recital of several of the most amusing—if such they can be called without any impropriety—incidents of the crusade met with marked demonstration of approbation from the large audience. A more attentive or thoroughly absorbed audience in the consideration of the matter which is nearest their hearts, we have seldom or never observed. The reading of this wonderful and unexpected revolution in the social relations among the people of the eastern and western portions of the continent was continued for nearly two hours, interspersed with an occasional song, and listened to throughout with unflagging attention. The unusual degree of public interest which the Temperance movement here has awakened is maintained and augmented is certainly remarkable. We understand these meetings are to be continued and the persistent uncompromising warfare against the whisky traffic be waged by the ladies until some practical reformation results from their earnest and [illegible] labors.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Attention is called to Hamburger's new advertisement. He has just received a new stock of goods, and having purchased the same in the Eastern markets is prepared to sell as low as any house. He does not pay a high rent and can afford to give the ladies every advantage. Call and see the new stock.

[illegible] is a tonic and purifier.

THE TEMPERANCE MOVEMENT and the election are agitating our citizens just now, and where to procure a suit of clothing that is bound to wear one that looks well upon a person and one that does not [illegible] the man to the bed rock to possess it is a question that is easily answered. At that old established house of Beck & Waldman they fill the bill exactly. Only take a look through their stock to be convinced. Boy's clothing is a specialty at that house and mothers note the fact.

CIRCUIT COURT.

Immediately after Circuit Court convened, yesterday morning J H Woodward Esq presented the Resolutions of the Bar of this city upon the death of Charles E Warren and moved the Court to order that the same be spread upon the journal of the Court and that a copy of the resolutions under the seal of the Court be furnished the family of the deceased. The resolutions are omitted as they have been published already in this paper the present week.

Mr James G Chapman arose and said:

Your Honor—The death of our brother Warren is to us an admonition that in the midst of life we are in death. Lately two of our brothers have been taken from our midst one in his prime and the other at the beginning of a busy life. The one noted for his prominence and the place he had filled and the other for the brightness of the future that was promised him. I can but admire the devotedness of any one whatever or how high soever his qualifications of a personal nature who engages in his life struggle in the profession of law. Generally he must be inspired with devotion perseverance patience ambition purity circumspection and generosity with judgment.

It is said that some have achieved honors others have honors cast upon them while some are born honorable. In our system of government all are equals and to him is due the highest meed of praise who surveys the field of life at the beginning of manhood and in the mind's perceptive prophesying sees what events are yet to be wrought upon its plane who sees before him the great problem to be solved in the solemn tread of progress and who goes forth in confident reliance upon justice and equity to meet the greatest responsibilities that are only met in our country by those who meet them of their own will as a free offering. To such I say, is due the highest meed of praise.

The profession of law affords ample opportunities for the full exercise of every faculty of the mind and for gratifying every longing of the fancy. If the ordinary plane is most enjoyable to the lawyer he may walk in that and enjoy the serene pleasure of a few chosen friends' acquaintance. If ambition leads his soul the very loftiest heights of fame are open to his view and attainment. He may toil and become a little above the great masses of his kind and leaning o'er a little, enjoy the foibles that others child like, are engaged in. He may play upon the small mounds of eminence or tread the fearful pinnacles of fame which always overhang danger. With experience he may even slide a while downwards where others might fear never again to rise from their destruction and enjoy the laugh and return the mockery of those who hope his ruin. But the confidence of others requires that too often he do not play upon dizzy heights. There is the great summit which all of his race strive for, and if, when life's journey is over, any have fallen or gone astray how bitter the pang if he be the example that has led them to their ruin.

Mr Charles E Warren was in the 28th year of his age having been born in Missouri Clinton county on the 9th day of October, 1846. He was brought by his parents to this State in 1847. In 1872 he was married to Miss Ellen Saffarans whom, with an infant daughter, his father, Hon Henry Warren U S Receiver of the Land Office at Oregon City, one sister, three brothers and step mother he leaves with us to mourn his loss. His mother died at McMinnville in this State in 1859. In 1870 his sister was married to Mr C O T Williams merchant of Oregon City. He was residing at McMinnville where his childhood had been spent in 1864 and responded to the call of his country for volunteers made at that time, and served his country for one year at the expiration of which he resumed his studies at the McMinnville College. He read law in this State and was admitted to the Bar of the Supreme Court in 1870.

Such was the character of our young brother as to make manifest to us all "that the king of shadows loves a shining mark." A few days ago Mr Warren was amongst us as one of us, manly generous noble and filled with an exuberant spirit in the full flush of health. Now he is dead! And we shall know of him henceforth only in remembrance of his noble character and in bearing sympathy for his relatives, by whom his loss will be most felt.

At the conclusion of Mr Chapman's remarks Judge Upton arose and said that by those who had ever met Charles E Warren his memory must ever be held dear. He had been intimately acquainted with him and bore his own testimony to what had already been expressed by the resolutions of the Bar. His acquaintance with Hon. Henry Warren enabled him to know fully of the justness of marked favors bestowed upon Charles by those who knew him. As a young lawyer, he was extremely active in preparing himself in his profession. Let the order be made as asked for and in memory of the deceased the Court will stand adjourned, and the case appointed to be taken up this morning will be deferred till Court meets again. The Court will then stand adjourned till Tuesday next.

STILL NOT DISHEARTENED.

Public interest and curiosity does not in the least decrease although yesterday was the eleventh day that the ladies have visited the saloons. It was thought and predicted by many that the excitement created in the public mind in consequence of the inauguration of such novel and unusual proceedings would soon be allayed by familiarity but these predictions have not yet been fulfilled. Wherever and whenever the ladies make an appearance on the streets and commence their devotional exercises, large crowds are attracted at once, streets and sidewalks are blocked up, and the curious throngs follow the crusaders from place to place, watching the proceedings, if not with sympathy, certainly not with indifference or unconcern. These ladies by their undaunted zeal, calm persistence and implicit trust in the power and efficacy of prayer are gaining the earnest sympathy and admiration of the public heart and are causing those to consider and reflect who were disposed at the commencement of the movement to scoff and ridicule it and call in question the purity of the motives which prompted such humiliation and self sacrifice. About the usual number of ladies were out yesterday. During the forenoon and afternoon more than a dozen or more saloons were visited. Nothing of special or uncommon interest occurred worthy of mention so far as we are able to ascertain, courteous and gentlemanly treatment was everywhere extended them. This is certainly a noteworthy circumstance and it affords us gratification to be able to truthfully chronicle the same. For the good name of the city we hope we shall not be called upon to witness or make public a repetition of such disgraceful and shameless discourtesies as have been shown the ladies on several occasions during the past week. We think the decent and respectable sentiment of this community condemns in the most unqualified terms such actions coming from whatever source. To show the earnestness of their purpose these ladies provided themselves with umbrellas shawls and water proof cloaks and braved the inclement weather and although the aqueous element descended at intervals as only a fitful April shower can yet they manifested no disposition to swerve from what they deemed was the path of duty. To day it is doubtless the intention to renew with courage and vigor the as yet fruitless war against this giant vice.

TEMPERANCE CALL.

To the Friends of the Temperance Reform: The following was adopted by the late State Temperance Convention held on the 31st day of March 1874 in the city of Portland:

WHEREAS, The liquor traffic is the great curse that afflicts us as a state and nation producing untold misery and degradation and placing burdens upon us exceeding by far all others; and

WHEREAS, Years of agitation have but demonstrated the fact that nothing but the strong arm of the law is adequate to the task of putting down this traffic; and

WHEREAS, In order to secure temperance legislation and the enforcement of temperance laws it is necessary to elect true and tried temperance men to all the various offices in the gift of the people; and

WHEREAS, We consider it now within the province of this Convention to make nominations therefor;

Resolved, That we recommend that in all counties of this State mass temperance meetings be held at the county seats on Saturday April 25, 1874 to nominate temperance men for county and legislative offices and to elect delegates to attend a State Convention to be held at Portland on Wednesday May 6, 1874 to nominate State officers and a Congressman.

Resolved, That a State Central Committee be elected whose duty it shall be to [illegible] and carry out the spirit of the resolutions.

In accordance with the above we make this our appeal to the Temperance voters in the State of Oregon.

To our honorable and beloved friends of all distinctions name and orders being members or not members of Lodges or Churches we the Committee implore you to give the most earnest heed to our call. The circumstances with which we are surrounded and associated demand the putting forth of all true patriotic effort to arrest the growing evils that everywhere stare us in the face from the fearful corruption and dishonesty that reigns in political affairs. It is almost everywhere an outspoken matter by the wisest and best of men that we have no confidence in the integrity of either of the political parties who hitherto have been filling the places of trust and responsibility conferred upon them by the vote of the people.

It is safe to say that three-fourths of the elections, directly by the people, are carried by liquor and who doubts that the liquor vote elects the candidate. We have rigid laws disallowing the buying or selling of votes but if the money is put into whisky who expects to prove that the law has been violated. But it is none the less a violation of the laws of God and man and the candidate who seeks an election in this way is guilty at the bar of his own conscience and before God of a crime. Now, it is altogether a plain matter that a man that will secure an election by fraud through intoxicating liquors can never be trusted with any kind of reliability, with the welfare of his constituents when his own interest is on the other end of the scale. Now this is the condition of those to whom we, the people have confided our highest earthly trust.

Now we beseech you, one and all, to come forth in this greatest cause that ever demanded your attention and cast in your mite to save our State from the evils of these old drinking theories, by meeting on the 25th of April 1874, at your several county seats, with a good representation from every temperance lodge, order family and individual and elect seven delegates from each county to a State Convention to meet in Portland May 6, 1874. And let those delegates as they value the welfare of the nation and love the cause of temperance not fail to attend. Let us show our zeal and patriotism by our works and let us earnestly ask and implore our countrymen to try at their earliest convenience a legislature constituted without a drop or the smell of liquor the greatest wonder of the age and see if it will not be the most especial blessing of the times. No one dares to doubt that our nation is morally drunk, and we believe without a doubt that this has grown essentially out of the liquor business, and without repentance and reformation, God Almighty will visit us for these things ere long. Yours respectfully

FASHION NOTES.

SPRING FABRICS.

The fineness and daintiness of the new spring materials harmonize well with the purity and delicacy of color. Chene silks have reappeared the small irregular vine or leaf shaded in wood color upon a pale gray or other neutral tinted ground.

Hair striped summer silks also show only a line of color—brown violet or purple—upon an ash or creamy surface, and the old-time lustres or new twilled challies fine as the finest tamise cloth, though varied with blue and buff and mauve and almost prettier than grenadine in black, still exhibit an enormous preponderance of the subdued tints for the season.

The only new fabric which the season has developed so far is all gray and brown, in all the different shades of these colors. It is a lovely soft material very fine and all wool. It is manufactured in what are known among tailors as fancy diagonal patterns but is called "basket serge." It is a very choice and desirable material for spring suits, or for serviceable wear during the spring and cool days in summer.

In silks there is a decided effort to return to lighter, smoother purer styles than have been fashionable during the past few years. Heavy gros grains, and other thick and apparently massive silks have been discovered to be charged not unfrequently with sugar or some other starchy substance to increase their bulk and weight and the fact has discredited all silks of that description.

Pure black silks so smooth as to approach taffetas in quality jaspers which are in dark colors what chenes are in light leaf tinted chenes hair stripes delicate and fine added to the mixtures in silk and wool, which seem as if they had been made to test the degree of rarity which dress fabrics could attain and live, present a striking contrast to the thick cords and rough and ready wool and cotton textures which have been considered stylish for the past two years.

JET

Jet is the rage just now. Certainly it may be considered so when no costume is considered complete without some admixture of it. Jackets are covered with it, bodices are striped with it, polonaises are fringed with it, necks, bonnets, arms and wrists are ornamented with it, drapery is caught back with it and ruffs are mounted with it.

The beaded laces moreover—imported largely last season but which had no great run then—are now in great demand and will be used together with jet fringes instead of the choicer qualities of hand made lace for black silk suits for polonaises for grenadine suits and in capes scarfs and jackets for independent wear.

Lace of this description has little intrinsic value. It is not worth keeping; it is made to be worn out quickly before the fashion which is necessarily ephemeral dies out. It affords, however, together with beaded bands an easy method of freshening up old black dresses or lace garments. Beaded insertions velvet band with beaded lace edge and beaded passementeries (light lace-like gimps) put on in straight band will cover up many deficiencies of jacket and bodice and impart a fashionable appearance to what are be considered a quite unpresentable garment or costume.

But jet is very heavy. This must be borne in mind in mounting it upon lace and [illegible] grenadine [illegible] to [illegible] must.

Ask Them!

An advertisement of a medicine however candid and conscientious it may be does not always carry conviction with it. The public know to their sorrow that the boastful claims put forth in behalf of many so called remedies are literally a delusion and a snare. Probably the best use therefor that can be made of the space devoted to this notice of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is to invite those who read it to inquire of the parties that have tested the curative and preventive properties of the article what they think of it. We earnestly request all doubters to ascertain from such of their friends and neighbors as have taken this standard tonic and alterative as a protection against malarious diseases, or as a cure for indigestion liver complaint, constipation rheumatism nervous debility headache low spirits languor biliousness &c what Hostetter's Bitters has done for them. There is no testimony so trustworthy as that which is the result of personal experience.

PLAYING WOMEN

Ah, ye who [illegible]
And [illegible] and laugh
At women when they pray
Have never known
[illegible]
[illegible]

Have never knelt
To God and felt
[illegible] his great power
Have never [illegible]
Would I were dead
And baby too this hour!

Have never wept
O'er [illegible]
In convulsions of the tear—
[illegible]
[illegible]
A low ring [illegible] comes near—

Have never heard
[illegible] night bird
With shrill discordant tone—
The house clock tell
Its last farewell
To-night so dread and lone

And wished the morn
Had never been born—
That light would still delay
Its coming from
The distant gloom
Which curtaineth the day

Have never tried
[illegible] gently chide
The weak [illegible] when he came—
Telling [illegible]
While pride crimsons
The cheek as with a flame—

How baby walked
Or baby talked
And lisped its father's name
(O! woman [illegible]
Such sacrifice
Were worth a martyr's fame.)

Have never seen
The cheek grow thin—
The hair once bright as gold
Pale and grow white
As night by night
The shadowed heart grows old!

(Ah, yes the heart
With youth can part
Before life's youth is done
As tender flowers
Live fewer hours
When parted from the sun.)

Have never felt shame
That some loved name
Should 'neath the shadow lie—
Nor praying low
Felt falling slow
The tears of agony

Then do not scoff
And mock and laugh
At women's prayers again
For may be you
Would make them, too
If you had felt their pain!

—Scarlet Letter

MARIAN MOORE

It was as pretty a picture as could be imagined—the fair graceful girl leaning upon the low wicked gate with an arch of roses blooming above her like a framework. So at least thought Mr John Morton, as unconsciously slackening his hasty steps not too soon to disturb her he advanced along the pretty suburban village street. Soft however as was his step, she heard him, and, starting from her half pensive attitude, courteously returned his salutation

"I would scarcely have expected to find you up so early," remarked the young man in the frank, pleasant way that was natural to him. "Tempted out by your flowers?" he added glancing around upon the little front garden, rich in blossoms of every hue

"Nothing tempted me," she answered, carelessly. "I arose early because it suited me so to do"

A slight smile passed over Morton's lip. It was so like Marian Moore that willful little speech. And Marian saw the smile, and understood it perfectly, and she would not have been Marian Moore had she not resented it—at least from John Morton. With all her tender womanly affections and really noble and generous impulses, she was yet at times inclined to be willful and capricious—a sort of spoiled child, accustomed to be petted and indulged by her family, and deferred to and worshipped by her lovers. But John Morton never deferred to her in her humors and caprices, and though she knew that for nearly two years he had loved her, he was never her humble slave, or allowed himself to be made miserable and despairing by her neglect or coldness—or at least he never showed that he felt himself so. And last evening at Mrs Elliott's party, though she had purposely slighted him, and flirted with his rival, here he was this morning, looking as healthy, and hearty, and cheerful as usual and had even smiled with an air of superiority at her willful speech—as he might have done with a child Marian thought resentfully

"Were I as free as yourself to consult inclination," he replied to that same little speech, "I might not now be on my way to R—. Imperative business called me out before sunrise, but remembering your mother's wish to have her watch repaired in R—, I have called on my way to the depot to offer my services."

"I don't know that mamma has risen," said Marian, glancing backward of the pretty white house with its broad veranda. "You might have mentioned it to her last night."

"The letter requiring my presence in R— did not reach me until late. I found it awaiting me on my return from Mrs. Elliott's."

"There is Aunt Lottie in the veranda," said, the girl, indifferently. "For myself, I must gather my flowers while the dew is on them."

And while Morton walked briskly to the house she took up a basket and scissors and wandered about among the flower beds humming a faint air as she daintily gathered the blossoms and yet all the time she was wondering how long John Morton would be away

He came back presently with a little package in his hand. Marian stood, holding in her white fingers a tiny bouquet—a purple violet, a mossrose bud, and a leaf of rose geranium. John Morton's heart gave a quick throb. Had he not, the evening previous heard her telling Mr. Loraine the symbolical meaning of these very flowers ("Think of me"—"hope"—"preference") as they stood flirting over her bouquet? And had she gathered these blossoms for himself, now that he was going away?

"Won't you tell me good bye?" approaching to where she stood, in the laurels. "I shall be away for two whole weeks."

"Two weeks! You talk as if that were a long time," said the girl, lightly

"It will appear long to me"

She glanced up and colored as she met his eyes. It was seldom that she saw that look in them

"Won't you give me something to remind me of you while absent?" he pleaded, "a flower—those now in your hand?"

"The remembrance is scarcely worth having which heeds a tangible token," she answered, in the same careless tone

"Marian, you know what I mean." This time she did not dare to meet his eyes. "Will you give me those flowers? Unless," he added, "they are intended for some one else."

"And suppose they are so."

"Then I have only this to say—Give them to me—or to any other that you may choose!"

The girl's color went and came but she never lifted her eyes from the flowers which she was now slowly picking to pieces, leaf by leaf—and still the young man stood with his grave eyes fixed upon her and his hand half extended

All at once a feeling of his manhood came over John Morton. Should he allow himself to be thus trifled with in his deepest and most sacred feelings? Should he submit as for months past he had submitted to be checked and thwarted, and yet still led on as it were by this girl who knew how he loved her?

"Marian," he said—and his voice had a tone which warned her that he was in earnest—"if you refuse me this request it is the last that I shall ever make of you. I know that you understand me," he added, in a low, firm voice, "and I will take your compliance or refusal as definite and final between us."

It was scarcely the proper way of coming to the point, or of winning a favorable answer—at least from Marian Moore, but John Morton in his straightforward honesty and sincerity was but little acquainted with the finesse which most lovers find it so necessary to make use of on occasions like the present

Marian looked up with a heightened color. What right had he to put her to this ordeal—to force an answer from her? "For now or never" was clearly expressed in his look.

"I will not be compelled to do anything at the will of another," she answered haughtily. "There!" and she tossed the flowers over the low garden fence, and turning away left him without another word. He gazed after her for a moment, then with compressed lips and a pale still look about the usually frank and pleasant face he quietly passed through the little gate and pursued his way to the depot

Marian made her appearance at the breakfast table and seeing that her sister suspected something unpleasant between herself and Morton affected to eat with an appetite and to laugh and talk gayly about the last night's party. But she felt as though the delicate roll would choke her. [illegible] And when [illegible] she rattled off a gay tune on the piano [illegible] and cried more bitterly than ever in her life before. At first she felt indignant with Morton and then with herself. What had she done? What had she [illegible]? How [illegible] and wicked he had been. Oh, if [illegible] only acted differently! [illegible] now it was too late.

But no—I will win him back, she thought at last, and she dried her tears and pushed back her disordered hair from her flushed face and looked into the mirror. I know that I can do it, and then I will make amends for all my folly and wickedness. He is so good and true and noble. I could not bear to lose him! Oh, John—— and she cried afresh.

By and by she became more composed. After all the two weeks would soon be passed. In two weeks there was to be the military ball at which Colonel John Morton [illegible] leading committee man, [illegible] necessarily appear, and then would she not look her best at [illegible] her sweetest and so lure him back without seeming to intend it

I will wear a white tarleton, she thought to herself, because he likes it so much, and a wreath of white lilies, because they are so be coming in my dark hair, and—oh, dear! glancing from the window, if there isn't that tiresome Miss Jenkins coming in at the gate. What is she in such a hurry about I wonder?

Miss Jenkins was one of those birds of ill omen common to every neighborhood whose chief happiness appears to consist in going about picking up and retailing all news. And now her hasty steps as she ascended the garden walk and the eager tones of her voice heard from the hall below assured Marian that she had something of more than usual interest to communicate. She, however, bestowed no thought upon it until presently there were quick footsteps on the staircase and a hasty tap at her door

"Marian—Marian! let me in!" cried an excited voice, and opening the door, her sister Rose stood before her pale and breathless.

"Oh, Marian such an awful thing! Such a terrible accident."

"What is it Rosa? You frighten me."

"The train—the seven o'clock train to R—. Thrown from the track into the river—so many lives lost—and some that we know!" and Rosa burst into tears

In another moment Marian stood white and breathless in the midst of the family group in whose appalled ears Miss Jenkins was pouring her tale of horror

"As I said the train had unfortunately nearly passed the bridge, and it was only the last car that fell into the river—the others rolling down the embankment. But ah my dear all our townspeople were in that car—poor old Mr Allen and Mr and Mrs Metcalf, and young Col Morton. Gracious goodness! what is the matter with Marian?"

For Marian with a low cry as of physical pain had sank upon the floor, her face hidden in her clasped hands resting upon the sofa. She had not fainted, but crouched thus perfectly still resisting all attempts to raise her or administer restoratives until Miss Jenkins was at last gotten rid of, and then lifting her white face she said, "Oh, mother is it—do you think it can be true?"

"I hope not my dear. Such things don't generally turn out as badly as they are at first reported. There has been an accident it is true but we don't know positively who were the sufferers. Lie still Marian, and compose yourself. We shall probably hear better news presently."

So the girl lay quite still on the sofa while the mother and sister closed the window blinds to shut out the hot glare of the summer day and moved with silent steps about the house, not to disturb her. And as she lay striving not to think, not to feel—never in her life had thought and feeling seemed so keenly so painfully acute within her. All the past two years in which she had known John Morton all the little memories and incidents connected with him came back to her with a pang such as she had never before experienced. She thought of his goodness—of his noble manly, generous nature—and, above all his true and unwavering devotion to herself, and how she repaid it by affected indifference and sometimes intentional slight—as only this morning and last night at that miserable party. Ah, the pain that all this brought her and how often she groaned inwardly—"Oh if he is only spared, what will I not do to make atonement!"

And then the anguish of feeling and of the terrible suspense would grow too great to be borne, and she would rise from the sofa and walk up and down, with clasped hands until her brain seemed to reel and her limbs to fail her, and again she would throw herself upon the sofa, striving to shut out light, sound consciousness itself so that she might find a moment's rest from her terrible misery

Presently there were voices in the hall and Marian listening with senses unnaturally calm heard broken phrases

"No doubt that poor Morton was in the rear car"—"Mr Appleton left him there just as they approached Milton station." "Nothing since been seen of him." "Preparing to raise the car when Faulkner left. His brother gone down for the body!"

Mrs Moore came in a few moments after pale with traces of tears on her cheeks, and a tender, pitying, motherly look at Marian. The girl turned her white face to her mother as she said, in a low voice that was not like her own

"He is dead mother, I heard it all!"

And with gentle, consoling words and inwardly rejoicing that Marian appeared to bear it so calmly the mother sat beside her bathing the white temples and closed eyelids and never dreaming that her seeming calmness was but the stupor of a great despair

Dead! lost to her forever! Dead! and a great aching void in her heart and in her life which could never never again be filled

The hot summer day wore away—a cool breeze stole through the windows, laden with the breath of heliotropes—a scent which Marian henceforth never forgot—and still soft twilight shadows gathered in the silent room. Now and then the mother and sister stole softly to her side and spoke low and tenderly but Marian only shook her head and begged to be let alone and they complied knowing it would be best

So she lay still as though life itself had left her body but thinking—thinking—until the stunned mind seemed to revive and consciousness returned with all its unspeakable anguish

"If I could die—if I could only die and go to him," she murmured. "Or if he could come to me for a moment only one moment that I might ask his forgiveness and tell him how I love him!"

Then she thought of what she had so often heard—the spirits of the departed revisiting those they had loved on earth. Marian had always shrank with a sort of shivering dread from the idea but now it brought to her a strange thrill of joy

"Oh, John! if you could only come to me—only be near me though I might not see you and only give me a token of your presence—"

A soft faint rustle—an almost imperceptible breath of the heliotrope-laden air—and Marian opened her eyes and gazed around with an eager, startled look

Could she be mistaken or was it indeed a shadowy form that she saw standing in the open door way—vague, uncertain, impalpable, but still wearing the semblance of him whom she had called?

Her heart grew still for a moment with a grave awe—and then came a rush of unspeakable joy and tenderness. She rose slowly from the sofa and stretched out her hands

"John," she whispered breathlessly—"John dearest—"

And the form advanced swiftly out of the shadow and met the outstretched hands. No impalpable spirit touch but a clasp of strong, human arms and a warm human heart throbbing against her own

"Marian darling, don't you know me?" for she had drawn back and was gazing wildly into his face. "I am not hurt. I left the train at Milton and hearing of the accident came back to inform my friends of my safety."

Those last few words explained all and Marian in that sudden awakening from a horrible dream to happiness too great for words for the first time she fainted

"John, will you forgive me?" she said when that evening they found themselves again alone in that same little room with the bright moonlight chasing away the dark shadows

We need not repeat his answer but that given he said "Marian do you think you would ever have asked my forgiveness if you had not taken me for a ghost?"

This was some years ago and now in these days of spiritualists and spiritualism when ever the subject is introduced in their presence John Morton [illegible] with a curious smile and glance at his wife—Marian only [illegible] a spirit

And Marian looks down with a slight blush and a [illegible] reply. —N. Y. [illegible]

Since the developments in the case of Phelps Dodge & Co of New York there has been much outcry against the system of ad valorem duties. Discanting on the many opportunities which exist for such men as Jayne to menace honorable merchants of frauds the United States Economist says

The system of ad valorem duties involves a sort of sliding scale which it is impossible for merchants to follow. Differences of rates are found to exist between merchants in the same town and of course the price vary according to good or bad times or the credit of the purchaser. Many lines of goods are often shipped from foreign ports in a great hurry in order to catch the season's trade. The foreign agents of American houses may not always be aware of the necessity of [illegible] accuracy of valuation. The American Consul's signature to the invoice is the next thing in order. He is supposed to make diligent inquiries as to the correctness of the invoice in all its detail. But he never performs this duty and in fact cannot for he is not [illegible] than a business man and really he would not know how to perform this line of duty

But even if the foreign valuation are over ten correct they may be valued differently by the New York appraisers and then comes the usual seizure of books and private papers the tampering with dishonest employes to betray their employers and furnish evidence to convict them. Then again the seizure of books is in itself a blow to any firm. It involves a virtual suspension of business for the time being to say nothing of other numerous annoyance

The Moiety System

The bad features of the moiety system (its good ones are few) are forcibly illustrated in the course pursued by Collector Jayne of New York in the case of Dodge Phelps & Co. Mr Dodge has given a straight forward account of how the thing was managed. The substance of his story as published in the Commercial Herald is as follows

Mr Dodge was forced into an apartment at the Custom House and was confronted by the Collector by the United States District Attorney, by Jayne and several others and was there charged with smuggling and defrauding the revenue. He was also informed that the penalties would reach more than a million of dollars but that he would be let off and the secret of his alleged frauds would be kept from publicity provided he would on cut then and there to be mulcted of $271,000 [illegible]. They descanted eloquently upon the great injury that would be done to the reputation of his most prominent firm and all agreed in advising him to accept the vile terms that had been offered. The broken hearted honorable old merchant was so grief stricken and taken by surprise that he gave a conditional promise subject to the consent of his partners and of Mr Boutwell then secretary of the Treasury. His partners were fully aware that there had been no violation of law on the part of the firm but they also knew that the constrictor had them within his deadly coil and that publicity from official sources would probably be attended with sad results to the credit and standing of the house. The response from Mr Boutwell was not encouraging. He simply advised Mr Dodge to resist the charge if he knew his innocence and submit the case to trial in the courts. As this involved the very publicity which the firm was anxious to avoid a check for $272,000 was sent to Jayne and his gang but their success was so great that they could not refrain from boasting of it and in a few days the newspapers got wind of the affair

A Rare Chance for a Good Physician.

AS MY HEALTH IS IN SUCH A CONDITION that I cannot endure the exposure and hardship consequent upon country practice, I offer to sell my residence situated in Hillsboro the County seat of Washington County Oregon upon the most reasonable terms with a good practice thrown in the extent of which may be ascertained by addressing the undersigned or examining his books personally

The property consists of [illegible] feet [illegible] enclosed, with a picket fence and sidewalk in front, located on Main st Hillsboro [illegible] block from the Court House with a good dwelling, house office and barn also a never failing well of water. [illegible] fruit trees and vines growing thriftily. All of which I will sell for $1000 [illegible] cash and the remainder, half in one year's credit with 12 per cent interest secured by mortgage

Title guaranteed

I will also sell a No 1 Saddle Horse with saddle Bridle and saddlebags together with Household Furniture if desired at a greatly reduced price

Hillsboro is situated in one of the most wealthy farming districts in the state and has a population of about 500 inhabitants and has railroad running through the place. There is but one practising Physician in the place excepting myself and giving as much business as both can do

My object for selling is above stated and for the purpose of [illegible] practice. Any [illegible] a better place [illegible] Address as above
